

THE WRITINGS OF
HENRY DAVID THOREAU

JOURNAL

EDITED BY BRADFORD TORREY

XI

JULY 2, 1858—FEBRUARY 28, 1859

BOSTON AND NEW YORK
HOUGHTON MIFFLIN AND COMPANY

The Riverside Press, Cambridge

1906

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

All rights reserved

CONTENTS

CHAPTER I. July, 1858 (Æt. 40-41)

3

Starting for the White Mountains — On the Shore of a Broad River — Along the Merrimack — Travelling by Carriage — Senter Harbor — The View from Red Hill — Tamworth and Madison — Mt. Chocorua — The Scenery from Conway to North Conway — North Conway and Jackson — Ascending Mt. Washington — In a Colliers' Shanty — Plants of the Alpine Region — The Rocks of the Summit — Fog on the Mountain — Travelling through Clouds — Tuckerman's Ravine — The Snow Arch — Setting Fire to the Scrub — Meeting Blake and Brown — Hermit Lake — Tuckerman's Ravine — The Birds of the Ravine — Black Flies — Descending the Mountain — Gorham and Randolph — The View from Jefferson Hill — The View from Bethlehem — Notes from Loudon — White Mountain Bears — The Ascent of Mt. Lafayette — The Summit of Lafayette — Scrub Fir and Spruce — Pine Grosbeaks — A Rose-breasted Grosbeak — Thornton and Campton — The Birds of the Mountains — The Franconia Mountains — Daniel Webster's Old Home — The Traveller's Rights — Notes of the Excursion — The Best Views of the Mountains — Plants of Mt. Washington — A Hawk's Nest with Young — Chinese Quotations — A Wood Thrush's Nest.

CHAPTER II. August, 1858 (Æt. 41)

68

A Green Bittern — Musquash Trails — The Water-Lily — The Black Willow — Purple Utricularia — A Short-billed Marsh Wren — A Pickerel and a Minnow — Genista — Emerson's Gun — Concord River for Boating and Botanizing — Civilization and the Wild Fruits of the Earth — Black Willows — A Chinese Novel — A Marsh Hawk — Varied Lights of the River — The World ruled by Cliques — The Daily News — A

Goldfinch's Nest — Chewing the Cud — The Indian-Pipe — The Yew Berry — Myriophyllum — The Goldfinch as a Vocalist — The Mole Cricket's Creak — Purple Grass — Berries — Shadows of Lily Pads — Wood Pewees' Nests — Sagittaria Leaves — Some August Birds — Wild Oats — The Black Willows — The Fate of the Summer Ducks — A Talk with Minott — Flocks of Bobolinks — A Celebration in Honor of the Atlantic Telegraph — Bitterns and Blue Herons — An August Frost — A New Sail for the Boat — A Soaring Bird — Emerson as a Sportsman — Haymakers — A Meadow Mouse — Purple Grasses — Minott on Meadow-Haying — The Scream of an Eagle — A School of Large Suckers — A Sharp-shinned Hawk — Fishworms in Maine — Names and Knowledge — Rushes.

CHAPTER III. September, 1858 (Æt. 41)

141

A Snake swallowing a Toad — Chipmunks and Hazelnuts — Some Grasses — A Large Flock of Cowbirds — A Handsome Grass — Buchanan's Telegraphic Message — A September Afternoon — Rails' Eggs — The Little Dipper — The Death of the Leaves — Spiders' Nets — Eriocaulon — Target-Weed — A Southeast Storm — The Advent of a New Season — Gathering Grapes — The Truest Beauty — Polygonum — The Carolina Rail — Sedge Hollows — Swarms of Gnats — A Cape Ann Excursion — From Salem to Manchester — The Musical Sand — The Magnolia Swamp — From Gloucester to Rockport — Annisquam — East India Marine Hall — Smart Frosts — The Closed Gentian — Thistle-Down — Nightshade — Gloucester.

CHAPTER IV. October, 1858 (Æt. 41)

189

Marsh-Birds in Concord — A Young Cock — The Cat's Ornithology — A Captive Carolina Rail — Red Maples — An Excess of Manner — A Conflagration of Autumn Color — Phosphorescent Wood — A Beneficent Misfortune — Changing Foliage — The Comet — The Scarlet Smooth Sumachs — Soaring Marsh Hawks — A Fat Woodchuck — A Fungus — The Autumnal Tints — The Fallen Brakes — "Substantial Justice" — Red Pine-Sap — The Colors of the Oaks — An Indian Fletcher's Chips — Reflections — Floating Leaves — A Small Hawk — The Sugar Maples in October — Village Trees — Minott and Billings's Dog — The Cobweb Drapery at Sam Barrett's Mill — Making Wooden Trays — The Fallen Leaves — Making Things by Hand — Indian Summer — A Potato-Field Adventure — Floating Leaves — The Red and Brown Oaks — The Changing of the Birches — The Russet Fields — The Autumnal Tints — Ledum Swamp — Flocks of Wild Geese — Color — Some Late October Tints — Milkweed Down — The Browns of the Oaks — November Lights — The Turning of the Beech — The Rainbow Rush — The Bleaching of the Grasses — The Autumnal Tints — Red Oak Acorns — The Last Bright Leaves — The Wildness of the Cat — European Trees and Shrubs retaining their Habits in America — Buttonwood Stumps — Titlarks (?) — The Scarlet Oak Garden — A Tall Aspen — An Hour-Glass Apple Shrub — The Country Genius.

CHAPTER V. November, 1858 (Æt. 41)

271

The Dooryard as a Part of the Earth's Surface — The November Evening — Here — The Forest-Flower — The Brilliant Blue Jay — The Last Crickets — Friends — Goodwin, the One-eyed Ajax — Seeing — The True Sportsman — Guessing at Ages — Snow Buntings — The Apple Harvest — Virgin's-Bower — A Suicide — The Maze of Bare Twigs — Walking-Companions — A Lesson from the Wild Creatures of the Woods — The Yellow Birches — The Vanguard of Winter — A Hen-Hawk — A School of Little Fishes — Plowing Deep — The Death of a Hawk — November's Silvery Lights — A Red-throated Loon — The First Ice — Beautiful Feathers — The Scarlet Oak Leaf — A Letter from Ricketson — Browsing — Ripeness — The Blue Jay — Nature turned a Stepmother — Tracks in the Snow — The Bunch-berry — Freedom of Speech — The Popular Lecturers — A Musquash — Lycopodiums — November Lights — Evergreen Ferns — The Barren Thistle-Downs — Mocker-Nuts — Marsh Hawks — The Silvery Lights again — A Halo on the Shrub Oaks — The Religious — A

Wild Pig — A Sugaring of Snow — An Uprooted Oak — The Warmth of the Woods — The Universal Struggle — The Rise and Fall of Ponds — Landlocked Pollywogs and Fishes — Barren Hollows and Glades — The Striped Bream — The White Snow — A Perfect Winter Scene — A Forest Cathedral — The Tracks of a Hunter and his Hounds — A Distant Snow-Storm — A Rare and Strange Sight — "Respectable Christianity" — The Newly Discovered Bream — A Friend among the Fishes.

CHAPTER VI. December, 1858 (Æt. 41)

361

Pollywogs — A Salamander — Description of the Striped Bream — A Glaze — A New Bedford Whaler — The Withered Oak Leaves — The Freezing of a Pond — An Immense Flock of Snow Buntings — A Barred Owl — F. hyemalis and Goldfinches — Shrikes — The Winter Sky after Sunset — The Farmer's Sincere Life — The Futility of Advice — Some Family History — Skating — The Anxious Life of Fishes.

CHAPTER VII. January, 1859 (Æt. 41)

384

Oak Leaves in Winter — The Grammarian — A Fox and a Dog — The Snow-covered Pitch Pines — Nuthatch and Chickadee — Snow Buntings feeding — An Acadian Owl — A Soft Western Sky — The Alder — The Pink Light on the Snow — The Cracking of the Ground — A Red-shouldered Hawk — Frostwork on Trees — A Coat of Icy Mail — Wonderful Frostwork — Crows' Tracks — Some Peculiar Ripples — Mackerel Sky — More Crows' Tracks — The Pickerel-Fisher — A January Thaw — Caterpillars on the Ice — An Inspired Man — The Musquash-Hunters — Light reflected from Grass Stems — Insects on the Ice — Bubbles under the Ice — Dust on the Ice — Concord River Musquash — "Marble Ice" — A Walden Trout.

CHAPTER VIII. February, 1859 (Æt. 41)

434

Death of John Thoreau, Sr. — Biographical — The Indians — The Theme and the Essay — The Lichenist — The Settling

Ice — Symmetry in Trees — Rainbow-like Dust on the Ice — Life and Imagination — The Stillness of a Winter Day — The Settling Ice — A Gentle Rain — The Hen-Hawk and the Pine — Knowledge by Sympathy — The Writer's Experience — Quinsigamond Pond — The Profit of Milk-Farming — Tuttle's Prosperity — Morning and Spring — Good Books and the Scientific Reports — Concord Trappers.

ILLUSTRATIONS

COBWEBS IN BARRETT'S MILL (page 224)	Frontispiece
WATER-LILY	70
OCTOBER REFLECTIONS	216
WALDEN IN EARLY WINTER	352
ALDER CATKINS IN WINTER	394