

THE WRITINGS OF
HENRY DAVID THOREAU

JOURNAL

EDITED BY BRADFORD TORREY

XIII

DECEMBER 1, 1859—JULY 31, 1860

BOSTON AND NEW YORK
HOUGHTON MIFFLIN AND COMPANY

The Riverside Press, Cambridge

1906

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

All rights reserved

CONTENTS

CHAPTER I. December, 1859 (Æt. 42) 3

A Ride with an Insane Man — A Glaze on the Trees — John Brown as a Preacher — Brown's Translation — A Lichen Day — Walden in a Mist — Tansy — Brown's Greatness — Brown and Public Opinion — Present, Past, and Future — A Warm, Soft Sky — Dr. Ripley's Fire-Wood — An Irish Woodchopper — Faery Visitors — Watching the Clouds — Snowballs made by the Wind — From the First Georgic — A Classification of Snow-Storms — The "Philosophy" of Wood — Gerard's Herbal — Seeds as Food for Birds — The Squirrels' Winter Food — The Divinity of Youth — A Lodging Snow — The Snow wrinkled with Age — A Reminiscence of Summer — Fisherman's Luck — A Large Blueberry Bush — Fishes in a Newly Dug Pond — A Flock of Snow Buntings — Liatris in Winter — A Blueberry Grove — A Golden-crested Wren — The Artillery of the Frozen Pond — The Life of the Pickerel-Fisher — Head-gear of Men and Women — Women and Boot-Heels — A Brute with a Gun — Muskrat-Houses and Muskrat Food — Scientific Nomenclature — Open Places in the River — The Breath of the River — Remarkable Clouds — A Shrike — The Musquash in Winter — Winter Fog — Our System of Education — Thoughts and the Man.

CHAPTER II. January, 1860 (Æt. 42) 71

Snow Buntings — A Talk with Melvin — Traces of a Tragedy — Circumstantial Evidence — Snow, the Revealer — Seeds and Seed-Eaters — A January Thaw — Young Canoe Birchies — A Creature of Fate — A Flock of Chickadees — A Bushel of Nutmegs — A Hawk and a Weasel — Red Squirrels' Runways — Tree Sparrows — Red Squirrels — Alcott's Definition of Heaven — Chickadees and their Food — Streams of Drifting Snow — Hemlock Seed — A Gray Squirrel and his Tracks — Shelter for Wild Creatures — Birds in Winter —

Snow-Fleas — Small Fishes — A Talk with Minott — Tree Sparrows feeding — Solomon's Description of the Return of Spring — Importance of keeping a Record of the Weather — The River breaking up — A Fire on the Ice — Wisps of Cloud — The Sunset Sky — A Flock of Redpolls — The Apple Tree's Welcome — The Beauty that surrounds us — The Cawing of Crows — The Snow-Flea — Marks on Old Ice.

CHAPTER III. February, 1860 (Æt. 42)

118

Rosettes of Frost on the Ice — Arctic Scenery — Sun-Dogs — A Fox searching for Food — Gowing's Swamp — Tracks of Otters — Individuality in Gait — Springlike February — Figures in the Ice — Oak Leaves sunk in the Ice — Black Water — Icicles — Walking on the Ice — The Ice Another Sky — Colors of a Winter Walk — More Icicles — The Stupidity of Men — Tropes — A Snow-Storm — Snow on the Trees — Topsell's Gesner and its Account of the Antelope — Gesner on the Ape — Gesner on the Beaver — Describing Animals — The Names of Animals — Animals of the Ancients — Ripples in the Ruts — Berries as Food for the Wild Creatures — Notes from Brand's "Popular Antiquities" — Some Remarkable Clouds — Open Water amid the Ice — The Blood of the Earth — The First Sheldrakes — A Cap of Woodchuck-Skin — Squirrels and Pine Cones — Gesner's Point of View — Austin's Life in the Country — An Irishman's Fuel.

CHAPTER IV. March, 1860 (Æt. 42)

170

Thoughts entertained on a Walk — Skunk-Cabbage — The Meadow Flood — Ripple Days begun — The First Song Sparrows — Floating Ice — Musquash — A Flock of Grackles — Vegetation in Winter — Moles' Work — A Curious Phenomenon — Résumé of February — Two Red Squirrels — The Opening of Walden — Ripples on Walden — The Craftsman's Eyes — March Temperature — A Hen-Hawk's Neat Figure — Red-Wings — Sheldrakes and Gulls — Skunk-Cabbage — Honey-Bees — Early Insects — The Crimson Stars of the Hazel — The Cheerful Pitch Pine — Roots of the Yellow Lily — Woodcocks — A Swarm of Dancing Gnats — An April-like

Rain — March Phenomena — Temperature of the Months — Ducks and Gulls — The Sheldrakes — Meteorological Notes — Gnawings of Mice — The Sled and the Woodchuck — The End of Sleighing — The Story of March — The Fore-Glow of the Year — The Walker's Clothes — The Season's Fluctuations — The Toad's Faint Prelude — A Fire in the Woods.

CHAPTER V. April, 1860 (Æt. 42)

237

The Sawdust Water-Line — Sentences the Fruit of the Thinker — A Great Burning — An Ox in the Stanchions — The Faint Distant Ring of Toads — The Oscillating Pendulum of Spring — A Whirlwind — Crossbills — An Old Barrel-Horse and its Story of New England Life — The Song of the Chip-Bird — A Stake-Driver — A New Well — The Sinking of a Road — Hibernating Snakes — A Woodcock — A Gray Squirrel's Nest — A Concert of Blackbirds interrupted by a Hawk — A Mink and her Young — A Small Hawk — A Summeriness in the Air — The Hum of Insects — A Concert of Red-Wings — Tracks on the River-Shore — Fires in the Woods.

CHAPTER VI. May, 1860 (Æt. 42)

270

The Fresh-Water Clams — A Searcher for Money on the Muster-Field — At the Aquarium — Pickerel-Fishing — The Trail of the Musquash — Bluets — Nature's Regularity — Shad-Bush Bloom — The Strength of Calves — A Marsh Hawk — A Still Day — Rhus Toxicodendron — Mining Bees' Holes — Dandelion Seeds — Crows pursuing a Hawk — The Green of the Birches — Birds exploring Trees — The Hand-some Fruit of the Red Maple — A Cooper's Hawk — The First Rustling Leaves — The Sand Cherry in Bloom — The Night-Warbler — A Thrush's Nest — A Bear's Foot — The Black-Poll Warbler — Water-Thrushes — Sweet Flag — The Leaves of Red Cedars — The Brilliant Tanager — Notes of Late May — The Black-Poll Warbler — Sylvia pardalina — A Cooper's Hawk's Nest — A Pair of Marsh Hawks and their Nest — Rabbits' Forms — A Nighthawk — A Refuge in a Shower.

CHAPTER VII. June, 1860 (Æt. 42) 323

Gray Squirrels' Nests — Evening on the River — Departure of the Warblers — A Catbird's Nest — The Fully Expanded Leaves — The Peeping of Hylodes in June — Ferns and Foliage — Twilight on the River — Frosty Poplar Hollow — The New Leaves — The Showery Season — The Form of Mountains — The Down of the Willow — The Water-Bugs — A Bat — The Wind in the River-Valley — Sedges of the Wet Meadows — The Turtle and the Heron — Various Shades of Green — A Turtle Laying Eggs — Captive Young Woodchucks — Falling Buttonwood Leaves — Willow Down — An Upland Plover — A Wary Snapping Turtle — Phenomena of Mid-June — The Durability of Oak Wood — Pine Pollen on the Shores of Ponds — A Fox-Path — A Heavy Rain — A Cold June Day — Pine Pollen — "Pollinometers" — A Dead Turtle — Indian Arrowheads — Rain, raising the River — A Parti-colored Warbler — The Blue-eyed Grass — A Partridge with her Brood — A Black Snake laying her Eggs — Some Grasses — A Venerable Tortoise — A Hard Rain — The Beauty of the River Meadows — A Toad's Hole.

CHAPTER VIII. July, 1860 (Æt. 42-43) 382

Sunlight on a Grain-Field — Young Marsh Hawks — The Swift Camilla — Temperature of the Springs — Temperature of the Brooks — Temperature of the River — Rose-breasted Grosbeaks — The Lights and Shadows of the Grass — Proserpine's Hair — The Checker-Board Fields — Water-Lilies at Night — The Grasses and Sedges of the Landscape — The Cultivated Grasses — The Abundant Lily Pads — The Bullfrog's Eye — The Lily Pads — Pollywogs — A Box Turtle — The House-Leek — The Beauty of the Crops — Lightning — The Under Sides of Leaves — A Golden-winged Warbler — The Little Auk — Petrels — Other Birds found at Wayland — Detecting Poor Shingles — Young Wild Ducks — Shad-Bush Berries — Potato-Balls — Rain on the Water.

ILLUSTRATIONS

HOUSTONIA (page 278)	Frontispiece
SEDGES BY THE RIVER	98
A CONCERT OF BLACKBIRDS	264
THE GREAT MEADOWS IN SPRING	274
YOUNG SHOOTS ON PITCH PINE	326