

THE WRITINGS OF
HENRY DAVID THOREAU

JOURNAL

EDITED BY BRADFORD TORREY

III

SEPTEMBER 16, 1851-APRIL 30, 1852

BOSTON AND NEW YORK
HOUGHTON MIFFLIN AND COMPANY

The Riverside Press, Cambridge

1906

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

All rights reserved

CONTENTS

CHAPTER I. September, 1851 (Æt. 34)

3

Perambulating the Bounds — Drought — The Moon's Light — A Retired Life — The Telegraph Harp — A Dark Night — Windy Autumnal Weather — River Scenery in Autumn — An Irishman's Answer — Milkweed Seeds — Christian and Heathen — A Hornets' Nest — Jays and Hawks — An Educational Proposal — Vegetation in Summer — Birds on Grass Stems — Hugh Miller — The Railroads and the Farmers — A Spruce Swamp — Red Maples — Aiding a Fugitive Slave — A Moonlight Walk — George Minott — The Changing Leaves — Curled Strata in Rocks — Moonlight and Fairies — The Celestial River — Fish-Spearers — Echoes on the River — A Muskrat-House — The Rainbow of the Rushes — Sweet Acorns — The Witch-Hazel — Beds of Leaves — Relations with a Friend — New-fallen Leaves — A Flock of Chickadees — George Minott — The Sound of a Bell — Minott's Squirrel-Hunting — Zoölogical Analogies — On the River is a Wind — Boats of Various Patterns — An Unruly Boat — Surveying — A Dream — Wild Apples.

CHAPTER II. November, 1851 (Æt. 34)

85

Statements — Gossamer Cobwebs — A Canoe Birch — A Mountain Brook — The Hemlock — Dudley Pond — Long Pond — Nonesuch Pond — W. E. Channing — Facts — A Small Pond — Monuments — Social Dyspepsia — Thickness of Skin — A Bright November Day — Softness — Terra Firma in Writing — Channing — Minott — Moonrise — A Hard November Day — The Peterboro Hills — Miss Mary Emerson — An Evening Party — Talking to the Deaf — Names and Men — Revelation — The Church — Elusive Night Thoughts — The Hooting of an Owl — The Woodchopper and the Naturalist — A Strange Accident — Old Mr. Joseph Hosmer — Melody and Noise — Former Concord Houses — A November Sunset — A Precipice of Pine.

CHAPTER III. December, 1851 (Æt. 34)

133

Sortes Virgilianæ — A Blundering Irishman — The Advantages of Varied Employment — The Real Form of a Man — Ice Foliage — Pine Woods in Winter — Polite Conversation — A Soaring Hawk — Repentance — Difficulties with Friends — My Coldness — Little Johnny Riordan — A Walk on the Ice — Pine Grosbeaks — The Architecture of the Snow — The Beauty of Clouds — Science and Imagination — Speak for Yourself — Weary Oxen — The Western Sky at Sunset — A January Thaw in December — A Mild Winter Day — The Fall of a Pine — Sand Foliage — An Old Irishwoman — A Misunderstanding — A Female Lecturer — A Large Pine.

CHAPTER IV. January, 1852 (Æt. 34)

171

One Mood the Natural Critic of Another — A Warm Night in Winter — Felling a Large Tree — Moonshine — The Telegraph Harp — Snow on Trees — A Snow-Bow — Miss Mary Emerson — Haller on Linnæus — Greenough and Architecture — Seeing and Being — Sky and Clouds — The Recklessness of Horses — A Haycock in Winter — Governor Boutwell as a Lecturer — English Comfort — King Olaf the Saint — Minott's Hens — Hauling Mill-Logs — The Relation of Men to Mankind — Bill Wheeler's Life and Death — Borrowing a Dipper — A Simple-minded Pauper — Shaming the Impudent — The Sky and the Mind — The Littleton Giant — Stories of Miss Emerson — A Chinese Steamboat — Carting out Muck — Newspapers and the News — A Battle of Ants — Higginson as a Lecturer — Why I left the Woods — The Encircling Woods — Reading one's Papers to a Friend — Thoughts — Making Conversation — True Invitations — The Telegraph Harp — A Fair Sunset — The Cup of Inspiration — Dry Leaves on the Snow — A Canadian Winter — Mr. Foster's Preaching — Cat-tail Down — Memories of Walden — Summer Day-Dreams — Foster's Success — The Spur of the Moment — Nature a Plain Writer — The Blue Sky in Youth and Later Life — Woodpeckers' Work — Thaw and Thor — Shakespeare and Bacon — The Gone-to-Seed Country — Thoughts in a Journal — Journey-Cake — A Box for a House — Little Johnny Riordan — Homer and the Woodcutter — The Telegraph Harp — Channing as a Lecturer — A Comprehensive Character — The Linnæan System — Logging in Concord — A Chopper at his Work — The Poetry of the Jakes — The Name of God — The Best Manners — Greeley and the New Testament — The Loss of Faith in one another — The Arch of Friendship — Oaks in Winter.

CHAPTER V. February, 1852 (Æt. 34)

262

The Treachery of a Friend — Christianity — The Exploration of Night — My Friends — The Rush to California — Sir Francis Head on America — Libraries — The Latin Night — The Cars at Night — Winter Moonlight — A Glorious Night — A Lecture from Professor Blasius — The Ornaments of Style — The National Flag — Histories of Wars — Books on Flowers — The French and the American Accounts of the Attack on Haverhill in 1708 — The French in America — The Social Relations of the Irish — Their Success in America — The French and the Indians — A Fisherman on the River — Mirage — Witch-Hazel — My Failures and Offenses — Write while the Heat is in you — Snow-Shoes — Savages — Bee-Hunting — Bubbles on a Brook — Civilization — Epochs of the Winter — Norse Ancestry — The Horns of Oxen and Deer — Snow-Dust — A Botanophilist — Eystein the Bad and Hakon the Good — Facts in Poetry — Green Ice — Notes from Norse Legends — Rabbits and Moles — Entertaining Views — War and Civilization — The Value of the Storm — Snow-Crust.

CHAPTER VI. March, 1852 (Æt. 34)

326

The Necessity of Precise and Adequate Terms in Science — A Report on Farms — The Larch — The Gold-Digger a Gambler — Reason in Argument — A Picture of Winter — The Silent Appeal to God — Mr. Joe Hosmer on Oak Wood — Moonlight on Snow-Crust — Trivial News — The Railroad as a Footpath — Ambrosial Mornings — The Chickadee's Notes — Linnæus' Classification of Soils — The "Philosophia Botanica" — Sand Foliage — A Prayer — Books — The Squire's Bee-Chasing — Winter Birds — Signs of Spring — A Singular Circle around the Moon — Second Division Brook — Wood Tortoises — Sympathy with the Seasons — The Discovery of Relics of Sir John Franklin — Common Sense and Instinct — The Value of the Storm — Migrating Sparrows.

CHAPTER VII. April, 1852 (Æt. 34)

369

The Wages of Woodcutters and Sawyers — Gilpin's "Forest Scenery" — The Snow-covered Mountains — Flint's Pond — The Odoriferous Woods — The Falls of Saw Mill Run — The Hemlock — An April Morning — Borrowing a Boat — The Insignificance of Man — The Flooded Meadows — A Walk in the Rain — The Position of the Eye — A Moonlight Walk — Clouds at Night — The River Wreck — The Distant Snow — The Old Hunt House — Birds over the River — On the Flooded Meadows — The Great Meadows — Nut Meadow Brook — Fame — Alder Catkins — A Serene April Evening — Reflection Rhymes — Notes from Gilpin — A Pleasant Sandy Road — The Subject of Sex — The Song of the Robin — April Snow — The Early Season of 1775 — Sunburn — Harts-Royal — The Gull's Annual Visit — The Lawing of Dogs and Men — Converse with a Woodchuck — The Skunk-Cabbage — The Concord Meadows — The Hen-Hawk's Soaring — Ducks in the Meadow Bays — The Color of the Dwarf Andromeda's Foliage — Willow Catkins — Watching Wild Geese — The Sucker — A Flock of Geese — A Grand Oak — A Walk in a Northeast Storm — A Gull — Great Blue Herons — Wild Life seen in Storms — A Bed of Hay — Tricks of Trade — The Freshet — A Walk in the Rain — A Robin's Song — The Robin and the Indian — The Building of the Pyramids — The Farmer and the Lawyer — The Strain of the Red-Wing — All Nature follows the Sun — The Frivolity of Men — Protective Coloration — Barbarelli's Painting of a Warrior — A Shanty in the Woods — Tints of the Sky — Growing Grass — The Huckleberry-Bird — The Spotted Tortoise — The First Spring Flowers — The Early Willows — The Cowslip in Blossom — Sprouting Acorns — The Advance of the Season — An April View — Birds and Flowers.